Kavanaghs launch pioneering WiFi facility on its bus services

The south east is to benefit from JJ Kavanagh & Sons' becoming the first Irish coach and transport company to provide onboard WiFi facilities to its passengers.

The wireless technology will allow the company to track the location of each vehicle in its fleet in real-time leading, thus improving service for its customers along with high speed wireless internet access for all passengers.

JJ Kavanagh & Sons has selected Vodafone as the mobile data service provider for the deployment.

"It's an exciting time for the company providing internet connectivity to our entire fleet introduces a technology platform on which we can build new and innovative services that not only benefit our passengers but also improve the way our fleet operates," said company Director Paul Kavanagh said

"We are delighted to have been selected by JJ Kavanagh & Sons for this landmark rollout of in vehicle internet" said Patrick Cotter, Director of Fleet Connect Ltd.

"Such a major commitment to this technology from Ireland's largest Irish owned player is clear evidence that public transport is the new major market for Wi-Fi hot spots and the services that in bus internet connectivity enables".

Anne O'Leary of Vodafone Ireland also welcomed her company's partnership in the new venture

"We have Ireland's fastest and most reliable mobile broadband network with high quality coverage available nationwide," she said.

"Along with the quality of coverage, the ease of use of this technology will allow passengers to enjoy simple, fast and reliable connectivity whilst travelling with JJ Kavanagh & Sons."
